COMMITMENT OF BOYS

TO STATE INSTITUTIONS Senate Addressed by Mr. Searls on a Proposed Law-Text of the Bill, Which Was Tabled.

Hartford, June 16.—Senator Searls

Which Was Tabled.

Hartford, June 16.—Senator Searls today, in addressing the senate on a proposed law for the commitment of boys between the ages of 7 and 16 to chartered institutions of the state, said he believed that it is sometimes well to break precedent when precedent stands as an obstacle to progress. He said that this measure was a great step forward for Connecticut to take and the committee had every hope that the bill would be passed. It was drawn in the interest of the boys who are starting in a small way on the wrong track, boys who may be saved and with a little wholesome influence at the outset may become in later years citizens of standing. The bill was tabled in order that some senators might study it closely.

The bill follows:

Section I. Ahy boy between the ages of seven and sixteen years who is in manifest danger of failing into habits of vice, or who is leading an idle, useless, or otherwise incorrigible life, or who refuses to perform labor suitable to his years or condition, or to attend school, may, upon the complaint of a grand juror, or of the prosecuting attorney of any town, city or borough court, or upon the complaint of a parent or guardian, he brought before, a justice of the peace, or the fown, city or borough court, or propose of the police court, within whose jurisdiction he may reside or be found and, upon conviction, may be committed to the custody of an institution chartered by the state for the purpose of receiving and caring for boys who have fallen into or are in danger of failing into vicious habits, until he shall have arrived at the age of 21 years or until sooner discharged as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 2. When any boy committed to any such institution shall have improved in morals and habits sufficiently in the judgment of the trustees of such institution to quality him for useful employment, they shall, as soon as possible, place him in a suitable home with relatives or others and cause him to be further instructed and requisity employed in some trade or useful occupation suited to his age and capacity until he shall have attained the age of 21 years.

The other sections provide for the discharge of a boy who is mentally incompetent from the institution and his transfer to the school for imbeciles, the state paying $2.50 each week for his maintenance at such school, the balance of the cost to be paid by the relatives of the boy.

The proposed law is to meet the conditions at present and every boy discharged from a reform school is allowed to go back to the reformatory on conditions resulting in a relapse into former habits.

CONNECTICUT AUTO BILL.

So Many Amendments to the Law That its Text is a Matter of Con-jecture.

Hartford, June 16.—The house today adopted so many amendments to the automobile law that its text has become a matter of considerable conjecture among the members of the general assembly who are interested in automobile legislation. It has been pointed out that most of the amendments offered today were presented by members who do not now operate machines and who seemed to have little knowledge of the actual conditions relating to the traffic.

In order to be prepared with a means to offset a bill which is involved, members of the house who want a good commensense bill engaged in drawing up an entirely new measure, this afternoon, which may be offered as an amendment to the bill now in printers' hands with the house changes.

The new draft will meet many of the objections which have given fise to the amendments offered by the lawyers in the house.
